

Thank you for downloading the 2012/13 AiTS price list

The collision investigation section of the price now includes the new degree modules. All the old 'courses' are still available, however their name may have changed or you might find they have been incorporated into a larger module.

By way of example the AiDamage Operators course is now part of a module called Collision Investigation Technologies and has been renamed Damage Analysis as shown below.

	Credit value	You come to us (price per student) Collision Investigation Technologies
a) Applied Maths for Collision Investigation	30	a) £660
b) Damage Analysis		b) £700 + accommodation
c) Forensic mapping		c) £700

You can still attend the Damage Analysis Course even though you are not registered for the degree and you do not have to sit the whole module. The content of the course remains the same or has been expanded. You can also attend any of the new modules that may be of interest to you for example Highways Management, Law and Investigation.

All the collision investigation modules are now assessed and AiTS certificates have been changed from 'has attended' to 'has passed'. If you are registered with DMU you will find that as well as the end of module assessment there is usually further project work when you return to your workplace.
